

Tips to Avoid Insurance Marketing Scams

Medicare beneficiaries have many choices to make about their Medicare coverage. While most insurance agents are honest, some dishonest agents may take advantage of the large number of choices and enroll people into plans that are not good for them. Medicare has marketing rules to prevent this. If an agent breaks one or more of these marketing rules, it should be reported. Here are some of Medicare's rules to prevent dishonest insurance sales:

Insurance Agents selling Medicare Part D, Medicare Supplement, or Medicare Advantage plans may NOT:

- ★ Enroll you in a plan without your permission.
- ★ Lie to you to get you to enroll in a plan, or tell you that a plan is “free.”
- ★ Sign you up for a plan over the phone unless you call them.
- ★ “Cold” call, use door-to-door marketing, or market plans using any other form of unsolicited contact. Insurance agents may contact you about your current plan if you are enrolled in a plan with their company; they may contact you for a disenrollment survey if you leave the plan; and they may contact you if you have given them permission to contact you. (Note: signing up for information at an event or returning a postcard counts as “permission.”) With your permission, an agent may schedule a time to meet with you in your home, but s/he may not come unannounced.
- ★ Market or sell insurance plans at an “educational” event. If a community event is labeled as “educational,” an insurance agent is not allowed to sell plans at that event.
- ★ Provide or pay for meals. Insurance agents are allowed to provide drinks and small snacks while marketing their plans, but they are NOT allowed to provide enough food to be a meal or pay for a meal, such as at a restaurant.

Tips to Avoid Insurance Marketing Scams

- ★ Market plans in health care settings. Insurance agents may not sell plans in waiting rooms or exam rooms, at pharmacy counters, or in other health care settings. They also may not approach people in parking lots or hallways to try to sell plans. They may set up tables in common areas, such as a cafeteria or conference room.
- ★ Offer gifts worth more than $15. Insurance agents are allowed to use small gifts, worth less than $15, to market their plans. However, they must offer those gifts to anyone who is interested. Gifts may NOT be given as a reward for enrollment in a plan.
